CONGRESS,

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Suspension of Intercourse with France.

WEDNESDAY, January 23.

Mr. Nicholas said, it would be difficult to ascertain precisely where truth is to be found; whether in the extremes of party, or in a middle course. The gentleman from Maryland says, party-men are always in the wrong; therefore he supposed that gentleman to be of opinion that those who vibrate between two parties, are always in the right. In considering this question, he should do it according to his best judgment: if his mind should be so operated upon by party-spirit as not to see the truth, it would be his misfortune.

He believed, as he had already stated, that this bill, as it now stands, will authorize the President to negociate with the subordinate agents of a government against the will of that government, and thereby promote a separation betwixt the agent and his government, by holding out a temptation to do certain acts not warranted by the government. The house had been told by two gentlemen from Massachusetts, that this cannot be the operation of the law, because it has no relation to a revolted colony; that when once a revolt takes place, the trade will open of itself, as the territory will no longer be under the authority of France. He wished to enquire into the truth of this doctrine, which one gentleman has asserted, and another has endeavoured to prove. Mr. N. asked if Toussaint should to-morrow declare himself independent, would the President be authorized to direct the Collector of the Customs to consider St. Domingo as no longer coming under the present law? In his own opinion, he could not, because it would be contrary to the practice of any other government; and if done, would give the lie to all the professions made by us on subjects of this kind. When the separation merely commences; when we know nothing of the means which the revolters possess, but because some person chuses to declare a place independent, shall our government interfere, and acknowledge such a place independent? He asked whether any gentlemen in this house, who are so frequently called disorganizers, had ever broached a doctrine like this? He knew very well, without the authority of Vattel, which the gentleman from Massachusetts had introduced, that any nation is at liberty to take part in a rebellion; but it is a good cause of war. When a revolution is effected, then the country revolting becomes independent, and any nation may treat with it according to its will; but if you take part with the revolters, you place yourselves on the same ground with them, in respect to the government revolted against; and, said he, in case we gave any assistance to any island belonging to France, in its revolt against that government, we place ourselves in a state of war. The only question would be, whether we ought to run this risk? The last gentleman from Massachusetts has taken it for granted, that this may be the effect of the law, and has attempted to justify it. He has declared, that after any island shall have declared itself independent, no captain of a vessel could be recovered against for a breach of his bond. Mr. N. asked whether the gentleman could suppose that any of the courts of this country, who are the peculiar defenders of order, and who are to keep down all dispositions to violate it, would give it as their opinion that the moment any rebellious agent shall declare a colony independent, it is to be considered as really become so! Mr. N. did not believe this opinion could be seriously avowed.

But the gentleman says, that whilst any island remains under the government of France, it will be no violation of the rights of France, no commitment of the peace of this country, to agree, on certain conditions, to trade with it, whilst our commercial intercourse is interdicted with the nation and possessions generally; because a nation has a right to trade with whom it pleases, and to except any part of said nation which it may think proper. Suppose this doctrine were admitted, what does it prove? Will it prove that we may hold out an invitation to a part of a country to commence trade with you, when that invitation requires an abandonment of the orders of the government to which it belongs? Certainly not. The case he has stated could only operate with the consent of the foreign government.

Mr. N. believed gentlemen are wrong in their construction of the present law, when they say if Touissaint were to declare himself independent to-morrow, that the Executive might immediately consider him so, and direct trade to be carried on with that island as heretofore. He believed the President would not do it, and that the present clause of this bill is founded upon the certainty that he would not. If this is the case, the same objection is in full force against the wording of this section. The gentleman from Maslachusetts, first up, seems to acknowledge that the law is to have this operation. He says St. Domingo may become independent, and that therefore it is highly proper we should let them know what dependence they may have upon us; to let them know that they may expect all the advantages of independency. Is not this, said Mr. N. an acknowledgment of the effect which this law will have? That the moment they throw off the French yoke, they will receive all the assistance from this country which a free commerce can give them. Mr. N. thought the gentleman himself inflicted the deepest wound on this bill; for gentlemen cannot say, that such an assurance is not a temptation to commit the act.

But it is said we are mistaken in the meaning of this law, contiued Mr. N. and that it relates only to persons exercising authority under the French government. The words are "any person claiming and exercising authority," so that a place may belong to the French Republic, and yet any usurper may "claim and exercise an authority" there. Indeed, it is expressly calculated to meet a case of rebellion.

But gentlemen tell the committee, that however, these word may be construed, it is not the meaning of gentlemen that they should operate in any other way than to meet that power which appears to be vested in the agents of the French government in the West-Indies, to exempt their islands from the laws of their mother country, whenever they are found inconvenient. The gentleman from Massachusetts produced the proclamation of Hedouville in support of his opinion. As he understood that proclamation, Mr. N. said, it amounted to no more than this, that provisions and dry goods when destined to St. Domingo, should be received there. Does this, said he, make a case upon which this bill can operate? It does not; and every one must admit that this clause was not meant to apply to Hedouville.

But the gentleman from S. Carolina (Mr. Harper) whom, he must take the liberty of saying, from being a declaimer against the practice of dividing the people from their government, is now become an advocate of the doctrine, but who seems to have lost much of the force and energy which he has heretofore displayed—he says this bill will not promote diforginization; because privateering is a privilege of the colonists, but it is not their duty; that they may, therefore, privateer, or not, at their will.

Mr. N. said, he would state a case, in order to try the gentleman's doctrine. Suppose we make an agreement of the kind proposed with St. Domingo, and a cruiser of France should carry in there one of our vessels, and demand condemnation, he wished to know, whether the governor would consider the orders which he had received from France, or the agreement which he had entered into with our government, paramount? Mr. N. referred to what had been said about considering every government in existence as legal. With respect to a nation, he said, the doctrine was correct; but could not apply to the usurpation of a colony.

Mr. N. could readily believe that the trade of St. Domingo is very valuable to this country, and the assertion of the gentleman from Maryland, that it is a "mine of gold," had confirmed that opinion; and he was really afraid, that that gentleman's representing a commercial part of the country and being himself deeply engaged in commerce the importance of this trade may have too much weight in deciding a question of this kind, and be a mean of observing the evils which would arise from it; but Mr. N. was of opinion, that a solid peace would be far more beneficial to the commerce generally, than any temporary advantage of this kind. Besides, the principle upon which such advantages would be built, is something similar to that which would actuate a man to fall upon the property of his neighbor, because he is richer than himself.

But does not the same gentleman tell the house that the powers in St. Domingo are pretty equally balanced betwixt general Toussaint and Rigaud; and that, therefore, if Toussaint attempted to establish the independence of the island, there could be no certainty of his success? Why then, said Mr. N. should we go into a measure which might produce war between the two countries, when the advantage to be derived from it is so very doubtful? And he thought the danger from the proceeding was heightened by the circumstance which gentlemen have mentioned of there being so very large a body of people in arms there; for, since the powers are so nicely ballanced, it is not probable that the government party, in case of a struggle, would have the advantage? And would it not be the height of madness for us to run the risk of having the large force of that island, turned against us, in consequence of our improper interference betwixt the colony, and its government.

Mr. N. said, he could not overlook some considerations connected with this subject, which he thought of great importance. It is well known (and he begged gentlemen who have the same desire to preserve the country in peace that he had, to pause at the suggestion) that there are many gentlemen in this house who have been long in favor of coming to an open declaration of war against France; and he had every reason to believe that the same disposition yet exists in these gentlemen; but the same opportunity of making this declaration does not now exist. The public mind is not now so well prepared for entering upon a war as it was some time ago, because they believe things wear a better appearance. If, then, said Mr. N. the same disposition exists for war; if these gentlemen think they or their country, will be benefited by war, they may be very willing that France should declare it; and if it be possible that a wish of this sort may exist, it affords a full solution to the meaning of the bill.

We have, indeed, been told by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Allen—who, like himself, is remarkable for the coolness with which he makes up his opinions) that there is no change for the better with respect to our dispute with France; and that it would be madness to believe that the conclusions and observations which Mr. Gerry has made upon the subject, are well founded. If so, Mr. N. said, he was justified in supposing that gentlemen think there is no change in what is proper for this country; and he was farther confirmed in this opinion by Mr. Pickering's report upon the dispatches. For his own part, he was unwilling to take a step that would effectually dash from us, prospects, which, in his opinion, might end in peace, notwithstanding all the assertions made to the contrary. Indeed if all the three points which the Secretary of state sets out with wishing to prove, in his report, viz. the attempts of the French government to exculpate itself from the charge of corruption; to detach Mr. Gerry from his colleagues, and to inveigle him into a separate negociation; and its design, if the negociation failed, to throw the blame of a rupture on the United States—if all these points were proved, it would not shew Mr. Gerry's conclusions to be unjust. But Mr. N. believed, from the acknowledgment of Mr. Pickering himself, that there is a disposition in the French government to treat, and that there is a change of circumstances between the two countries; for he acknowledges that the idea of loans, and reparation on account of speeches, are formally given up; and also the demand for satisfaction on account of the British treaty. After these have been relinquished, said Mr. N. what are the points of dispute which remain? He always conceived these to be two of the principal complaints against us.

There is one effect which this report of the Secretary of State, like the present bill, is calculated to produce; it may tend to change our situation with respect to France, by insisting that all the informal acts which they have disavoweed, and must get rid of, before any treaty can take place, were nevertheless acts countenanced by the executive directory. This is one way of doing away the disposition, which, said Mr. N. in my opinion, exists in France for peace, and the passing of a law like the present, will be another; and, if persisted in, he is fearful a successful one.

But we are told, said Mr. N. that we ought not to excite the animosities of the people of St. Domingo. Is our present situation, asked he, calculated to produce this effect? Certainly not; since they are necessarily involved with the mother country. And to take the part proposed, he had already shewn might be attended with the most direful consequences. Mr. N. thought this country ought not to wish for the independence of St. Domingo in another point of view. However we may wish to see the naval power of France put down, so that they may not have it in their power, if they have the wish, to invade this country, it is highly important to us that the naval power of Europe should be divided. He did not think it could be for the interest of this country that Great Britain should have a navy which should keep the world in awe, and should subject them to her views; and if we assist in destroying the colonies of France, we shall be the means of throwing them, and their naval power into the hands of Great Britain. He did not know that it mattered much to us whether St. Domingo was a colony of France or England, only as it would add to the naval strength of England. He hoped therefore the motion for striking out would prevail.

Wednesday, February 20.

Mr. Lion, from Vermont, took his seat in the house this day.

Mr. Livingston said, he had received under cover a number of petitions from the state of Vermont, praying for a repeal of the alien and sedition laws, which he begged leave to present to the house. One of which having been read, in which amongst their other objections to the laws the petitioners complain of having been deprived by the sedition law, of their Representative in Congress for the greater part of the present session; Mr. L. moved to have the whole referred to the select committee to whom was referred the other petitions relative to this subject; but on Mr. Gallatin's suggesting that he understood that committee is ready to report, and that it would therefore be better to suffer the petitions to lie on the table until that report is made, and then have the whole referred to the same committee of the whole—that course was taken.

A message was received from the President of the United States, informing the house, that he had approved and signdd an act to authorize the reimbursement of money expended for the relief of sick and disabled seamen in foreign countries; an act to defray the expense of holding a treaty or treaties with the Indians; an act for the relief of Gazzam, Taylor, and Jones, and Samuel Watts; and an act for the relief of Jonathan Haskill. The President also informed the Senate, that he had approved and signed an act to amend the act for giving effect to the laws of the United States in the State of Tennessee.

The house took up the report of the committee of the whole on the bill for encouraging the capture of French privateers, by allowing a bounty on guns, and the motion being to concur in the agreement of the committee to strike out the first section of the bill, after a long debate, the question was taken by yeas and nays as follows:

The second section was then amended, by adding to it the usual enacting clause; but, after some observations against passing it, by Mr. Sewall, since the first section had been struck out, on the motion for its going to a third reading, it was negatived.

Mr. Bayard proposed the following resolution to the house:

"Resolved, That Matthew Lyon, a member of this house, having been convicted of being a notorious and seditious person, and of a depraved mind, and wicked and diabolical disposition, and of wickedly, deceittully and maliciously contriving to defame the government of the United States, and of having with intent and design to defame the government of the United States, and John Adams, the President of the United States, and to bring the said government and President into contempt and disrepute, and with intent and design to excite against the said government and President the hatred of the good people of the United States, and to stir up sedition in the United States, wickedly, knowingly and maliciously written and published certain scandalous and seditious writings or libels, be therefor expelled this house."

Mr. B. said, he had only to remark, that this resolution is copied from the record of the trial, which he had in his possession.

Mr. Nicholas said, if this had been a candid statement of the business, he should have been willing to have come to an immediate vote upon it; but words are introduced into this resolution which are words of course in every indictment, which do not particularly belong to this offence and the truth of which is never enquired into upon a trial. As he wished the nature of the offence to be clearly stated, he hoped the motion would lie for the present.

Mr. Bayard observed, he had already said, the terms used are copied from the record itself, and he did not think the gentleman from Virginia had been wiser than the law. He had himself no doubt that all the charges in the record are pertinent to the subject; if not, it would be extremely improper to introduce them. They are charges upon which a jury of the country have decided.

After a repetition of his objections by Mr. Nicholas, the house adjourned.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, Nov. 3.

If a system of national education was more necessary at any period of our history than another, the present is certainly that period.

At an epoch when the revolution of France has burst upon the world like an earthquake, and stifled the civil and political faculties of all Europe with its noxious vapours, every lunatic reformer and chimerical politician, from the National Convention or Legislative Assembly of France to the remotest extremity where French politics have undulated, has felt himself warranted to pour forth in harangues, in pamphlets, or newspapers speculations, his crude and abstracted opinion on political topics, regardless of the mischief he might thus produce.

The newspapers of all Europe, and more especially of these countries, have been filled with the eccentricities of the French patriots—and the popular brain has been maddened by the detail of arguments, projects, systems, and falsehoods which seemed rather to have originated in one of their lunar temples, called madhouses, than in any nation or assembly of rational beings.

It is prominent, and perhaps the only point on which the government of these countries have been most remiss and reprehensible, to have permitted the publication of French debates, and poisonous democratical doctrines, a moment after it became obvious, from the popular avidity for such publications, that the infection was alarming.

But since the minds of the adult are irreclaimably poisoned, does it not behove the state to look to the rising generation, and see that they do not suck in with the seeds of scholastic instruction, the virus of political poison, and future rebellion. Does it not behove the Legislature to enquire who and what are the men privileged or permitted to open schools for the instruction of youth, and what are the books through which a principal part of that instruction is conveyed?

The publican must pay an heavy license, and adduce high recommendation and security for his character before he is permitted to administer—to the drunkeness of the multitude.

The News-printer is made responsible by high penalties to the State, and the ruin of his business, for incurring the slightest charge, even by inadvertency, of libel or sedition, through this paper—and yet every man, be he whom or what he may, without license or even reputable recommendation, may open a school or an academy for the education of youth; and teach his pupils—to read, by Tom Paine's Rights of Man,—or inculcate religion on their tender minds, from the same author's Age of Reason.

The justice of the remark must be obvious to the slightest reflection—it materially concerns every man interested in the safety of the State, and the welfare of the rising generation, and we sincerely hope it may have the desired effect with those to whose sacred duty and high authority it properly belongs to reform the evil.

WEYMOUTH, Oct. 20.

A number of men belonging to the Leicestershire Militia, who refused to serve in Ireland, were on Tuesday marched through Leicester on their route to Yaxley. They were very ill received, particularly by the women.

PARIS, Oct. 13.

The Correspondence of this day, contains the following letter from Malta, dated the 21st Fructidor (7th of September.)

"The Sicilian Vespers have been renewed, and French blood has been shed by the murderous poniards of the inhabitants of this town. It was on the day corresponding with Sunday, preceding the 20th Fructidor (2d September) that the insurrection broke out after the Vespers, at the signal given by the tocsin, and by two guns fired in the old city.

"We have no intelligence of the fate of the garrison of the Island of Gozo, composed of 350 men, nor of that of the old City, which consisted of an 100 men; much fear is entertained of their having fallen under the poinards of the assassins. The insurgents have rendered themselves masters of several batteries, which command different landing places, and of a powder mill.

"On the 20th Fructidor (6th September) the peasants appeared before the town, but were driven back by the fire of our cannon. They cannot lay siege to it, but they have numerous partizans among the inhabitants. The French force consists of some frigates and gun-boats, which keep the sea open, and render them invincible, if the ports of Sicily should be early enough shut against the English fleets.

October 16.

In the yesterday's sitting of the Council of Five Hundred, Delbrel observed, that at the present moment, when war seemed unavoidable, and the Directory would be obliged to send the armed force beyond the frontiers, the enemies in the interior would no doubt endeavour to stir up commotion. One of the most efficacious means of preventing them would be the responsibility of the different Communes for all the disturbances excited in their districts; but as their responsibility was not yet enacted by law, he moved that a commission be appointed to take this subject into consideration, and make a report on it in the course of the current decade; which motion was adopted.

A letter from Toulouse, of the 7th inst. advises, that in several Cantons of that Department the requisition-men fly into the forests, take with them provisions, arms, and ammunition, entrench themselves, and remain there until the troops sent from their different Communes to arrest them have marched off.

CONSTANTINOPLE Oct. 22.

It is ascertained from the dispatches of the French Generals commanding in different quarters of Egypt which they have occupied, that they were every where in an unprosperous situation. General Buonaparte had sent these dispatches by an armed brig, which was taken by a Turkish vessel. The General states in these dispatches to the Directory, that his army is encamped at Pharaoh Tichesme, on a height which commands the City of Cairo. The Arabs who infest the neighbouring country, however, render it so unsafe, that it is impossible to venture 400 paces from the camp. Every thing which the army requires must be procured by force, as money and provisions are equally scarce. The Beys have not only escaped in person, but they have succeeded in carrying off their treasure, and Buonaparte adds, that the property of the inhabitants he cannot touch without the danger of an insurrection, which the army in its present situation would be unabled to withstand. It daily declines and suffers greatly from fatigue. The French Commander at Alexandria states in one of his letters to the Directory, taken in the brig abovementioned, that if he does not receive speedy succours from France, it will be impossible for him to maintain himself in Egypt during the winter. Between Alexandria and Cairo all communication by land is cut off, and by Rosetta it is carried on only by the Nile.

Extract of a letter from Boston, February 8, 1799.

"It is a subject of regret that Congress does so little at this eventful period; the session hitherto, exhibits an indecisive, inert, and childish countenance. The time is wasted in hearing and answering the old cavils of the democrats, who have in the same manner, consumed former sessions, to the infinite loss and discredit of our nation. We can discern no symptoms of peace."

MR. FENNO,

The commissioner for the fifth division of the state of New-Jersey has received from the principal assessors of the assessment districts within said division, the general list and summary abstracts of all dwelling houses, lands and slaves.—Does not policy dictate, that those assessors who have acted promptly in their business, should receive the same compensation as those who have been tardy? Establish a precedent of this kind for once, and finally de veels of Government must stop.

THE SUNDAY RIOT.

IT is not improbable, but that our readers may be desirous to be acquainted with what legal proceedings have been taken in consequence of the riot that took place at St. Mary's Chapel, on the Sunday before the last—we have endeavored to obtain correct information on this subject, and are informed that the defendants were bound over to appear at the courts of Oyer and Terminer now sitting: that Mr. Sharswood and Mr. Israel Israel were securities for the appearance of of James Reynolds; and that Mr. Thackera, engraver, was security for the appearance of William Duane; that two bills have been sent to the Grand Jury and returned TRUE BILLS. We learn that one of those bills is an indictment against James Reynolds, Robert Moore, William Duane, and Samuel Cummings, for a riot, and assault on James Gallagher, jun.—that the other bill is an indictment against James Reynolds alone, for an assault on James Gallagher, jun. with a loaded pistol, with an intent wilfully to kill and murder the said James Gallagher, jun. The result depends on the verdict of a traverse jury. The court this morning proceeded to the trial of the defendants. [Phil. Gaz.]

The jury, this morning, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

DOMESTIC.

Our countrymen seem to be more sensible than formerly of the importance of attending to the education of our youth. Several new grammars and school books have lately been written to advance this laudable design. The money paid to a French dancing master, for one quarter would nearly pay for a year of literary instruction. A dancing master, who can jump up and strike his feet together four times, before he reaches the floor, will receive an annuity of £. 400. a sum, which would well support a professor in a University, or give ample encouragement to four schoolmasters in the country. It would be as useful to this country, and, with some, as honorable to the rising generation, did they not put all their science into their feet. A little taste and knowledge of the plain parts of reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar or composition would be as beneficial to the young learners, if not as polite as to know the supple, particular bend of the knee, in French style, to produce a bow, or drop a courtesy on fit occasion. But, perhaps, it is the modern mode Francois to reduce in the rage of revolution the heels and head to a state of equality, as the superiority of one to the other would be a species of hated usurpation and despotic tyranny! "Where an unclean mind carries virtuous qualities, there commendations go with pity. They are virtues and traitors too!"

Facts have long since taught us that French principles infallibly lead to French licentiousness. At the last session of the supreme court, in this county, Major General Whitney, the patron of the trusty General Clarke, the friend of Lyon, and the lover of modern Frenchism, was prosecuted for the crime of adultery. Two divorces have been the consequence. The future tranquility of one of the largest and most respectable families in Bridport is destroyed. The repose of an amiable wife is fled; and fame runs, that to the act of injustice has been added the lash. The correction of a woman has ever been considered as a proof of as great heroism, bravery and generalship as to challenge a female to a duel, or fistycuff a very aged soldier who has the use of one hand only. The court has rewarded his wife with about one half of a handsome estate of his. Naturalists inform us, that useless and ferocious animals breed slowly; as the lioness breeds but once, and loses all power of conception. For the honor of human nature, we hope the seeds of democracy will not be more productive! Shakespeare has endeavored to shew that this crime is equal to that of murder!

"Fie! those filthy vices!—It were as good
To pardon him that hath from nature stol'n
A man already made, as to remit
Their saucy lewdness, that do coin heav'n's images
In stamps which are forbidden! 'Tis all as easy
Falsely to take away a life true made
As to put metal in unlawful mint
To make a false one!"

A brig below, name unknown.

The schooner Hunter, John Ogelvie, master, parted her cable and drove on shore on the pitch of Cape Henlopen, last Friday morning; the cargo consisting of rum, sugar and hides, all saved and stored by the Inspector of the revenue at the Light House—some hopes of the vessel being got off. The schooner is owned by John Christie and Co. the rum and sugar consigned to them, the hides to Thos Allibone.

The following vessels lay at Reedy island on Sunday evening.

Ship Cæsar, Howland; ship Louisa, Champlin; ship Pennsylvania, York; ship Charles, Price; ship Rebecca, M'Ever; brig George, Howland; brig Peggy Maxville; schooner Favorite Packet, Masset, and several others.

Several vessels reported to have gone to sea on Thursday last, did not go out until Friday; they anchored below the Brandywine on Thursday evening, and the next morning in consequence of the violence of wind at N. W. the most of them were obliged to cut their cables and run, leaving their anchors. Amongst them was the Ariel, Swanwic, Friendship, Mars, Henrietta and Wilmington, the gale was so violent that many of the vessels were unable to discharge their pilots.

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please, I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15½ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Any person inclining to buy or rent may know the terms by applying to John Carnan (Lovehall) Cœcil county and state of Maryland, eight miles south of Elkton.

BY an Act of Congreſs paſſed on the ſixteenth day of July in the year of our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and ninety eight, the Preſident of the United States is authoriſed to borrow on behalf of the United States from the Bank of the United States, or from any other body or bodies politic or corporate, or from any perſon or perſons, and upon ſuch terms and conditions as he ſhall judge moſt advantageous for the United States, a ſum not exceeding five millions of dollars, ſo however, that no contract or engagement be made which ſhall preclude the United States from reimburſing any ſum or ſums borrowed at any time after the expiration of fifteen years from the date of ſuch loan. And whereas, it is declared by the ſaid Act, that ſo much as may be neceſſary of the ſurplus of the duties on Imports and Tonnage beyond the permanent appropriations heretofore charged upon them by law, ſhall be pledged and appropriated for paying the intereſt, and alſo for paying and diſcharging the principal ſum or ſums of all the monies which may be borrowed, according to the term or terms which may be fixed, purſuant to the authority aforeſaid—And whereas by the ſaid Act, the faith of the United States is pledged to eſtabliſh ſufficient permanent Revenues for making up any deficiency that may hereafter appear in the proviſions before-mentioned for paying the intereſt and principal ſums, or either of them, of any monies which may be borrowed purſuant to the ſaid Act. And whereas the Preſident of the United States did by an Act or Commiſſion under his hand dated the ninth day of January in the year one thouſand ſeven hundred and ninety nine, authoriſe and empower, the Secretary of the Treaſury, to borrow on behalf of the United States, any ſum not exceeding in the whole, five millions of dollars and to make ſuch contract or contracts as ſhould be neceſſary, and for the intereſt of the United States, in purſuance of the Act of Congreſs above recited.
Now therefore, the underſigned, Secretary of the Treaſury, in purſuance of the Act of Congreſs, and the authority from the Preſident of the United States, above mentioned, doth hereby on behalf of the United States of America, contract and engage in manner following, to wit.
1ſt. A book for receiving ſubſcriptions to a Loan of five millions of dollars for the uſe of the United States ſhall be opened in the city of Philadelphia, at the Bank of the United States on Thurſday the twenty eighth day of February enſuing, which book ſhall continue open for the purpoſe of receiving ſubſcriptions, until the whole of the ſaid five millions of dollars ſhall be ſubſcribed. If more than five millions of dollars ſhall be ſubſcribed on the firſt day of opening the ſaid loan, the ſurplus ſhall be deducted in proportion to the ſums ſubſcribed by individuals, exceeding four thouſand dollars.
2d. For every hundred dollars which may be ſubſcribed there ſhall be forthwith depoſited and paid the ſum of twelve dollars and fifty cents, and like payments of twelve dollars and fifty cents, ſhall be made within the firſt ten days of the months of April, May, June, July, Auguſt September and October enſuing. The Secretary of the Treaſury however reſerves the right of reducing the number of inſtallments by ſpecial agreements, with the individuals who may become ſubſcribers.
3d. On the failure of payment of any inſtallment of the ſums ſubſcribed according to the tenor of the ſecond article, the next preceeding inſtallment of twelve dollars and fifty cents, which ſhall have been paid, for every hundred dollars ſubſcribed ſhall be forfeited to the United States.
4th, The ſums ſubſcribed ſhall and may be paid to the credit of the United States, at the Bank of the United States, or at the offices of diſcount and depoſit of the ſaid Bank at Boſton, New-York, Baltimore, or Charleſton, or at either of the Banks of Salem, in Maſſachuſetts, Newport and Providence in Rhode-Iſland, Hartford in Connecticut, Albany in New-York, or Alexandria in Virginia; for which payments, the receipts of the Caſhiers of the Offices of Diſcount and Depoſit and of the Banks aforeſaid ſhall be received at the Bank of the United States as equivalent to money; but no payment of a ſubſequent inſtallment ſhall be received at any other place than that where the firſt inſtallment was paid, except at the Bank of the United States; in caſe any depoſits ſhall be made at the offices of Diſcount or Depoſit, or at either of the Banks aforeſaid, which ſhall not be applied to the payment of the firſt inſtallment of ſubſcriptions to the Loan aforeſaid, the ſaid depoſits ſhall be forthwith refunded by directions from the Treaſury.
5th. For the ſums or number of ſhares of one hundred dollars, which may be ſubſcribed, certificates ſhall be given by the Caſhier of the Bank of the United States, which ſhall be aſſignable by indorſement, and delivery of the parties in whoſe favour the ſaid certificates may be iſſued, until the completion of the payments required by the tenor of the ſecond article preceeding.
6th. The ſums ſubſcribed and paid in purſuance of the tenor of the ſecond article preceeding, ſhall after the ſaid payments have been compleated, conſtitute a funded capital ſtock diviſible into ſhares of one hundred dollars each, which capital ſtock ſhall bear intereſt at the rate of eight per centum per annum from the times fixed for the payment of the reſpective inſtallments payable quarter yearly at the Treaſury of the United States, or at the Loan Offices where the ſame may ſtand credited, until the laſt day of December, in the year one thouſand eight hundred and eight.
7th. After the laſt day of December in the ſaid year one thouſand eight hundred and eight, and after reaſonable notice to the creditors, which ſhall be given by an advertiſement in ſome public newſpaper, printed at the ſeat of the government of the United States, the ſaid capital ſtock ſhall be redeemable at the pleaſure of the United States by the reimburſement of the whole ſum or ſums borrowed, and which may conſtitute the ſaid capital ſtock either at the treaſury of the United States or at the loan offices where the ſame may ſtand credited.
8th. The credits for the ſaid capital ſtock ſhall and may be ſeparately certified in ſums either for one hundred, four hundred, one thouſand, four thouſand or ten thouſand dollars, and the credits ſo certified ſhall be transferable by the creditors, or their attornies, at the Treaſury and Loan Offices reſpectively, in purſuance of the rules which have been, or which may be eſtabliſhed relative to the tranſfer of the funded ſtock of the United States.
